The most important thing is to pre-register your domain now

A personal .ie domain name is important

- It associates your personal name with Ireland, it is more personal than an anonymous .com address
- It is the perfect address for a personal web site or blog or business site associated with your name
- It allows you to have a personalised e-mail address on your own domain
- It protects your name on the Internet. You get to decide what is associated with your name.
- You can register your child's name and save it for them for future use. Once you have registered your domain name, no one else can have it unless you allow the domain to lapse.

Supporting Documentation

- The name in the document supplied must match exactly the domain name applied for e.g. a document showing Mr. John Smith is not acceptable if the domain name required is johnnysmith.ie
- Supporting documentation can be any of the following; Irish passport, Irish driver's licence, Irish revenue / social welfare document showing PPS number, Irish birth certificate, Irish marriage certificate, Irish utility bill (e.g: Eircom, Vodafone, O2, Meteor, 3 (bill pay phones only), ESB, Airtricity, Bord Gais, Sky, NTL, Chorus.

Terms & Conditions: Registrations will be on a first come first served basis. All forms and documentation must reach us by 29th October. All pre-registrations will be date stamped, and if we receive two of the same name, we will register the one we receive first. Kildare Web Services will apply for registration of your domain name on 31st October 2007 and will notify you shortly after regarding your registration. Payments for unsuccessful registrations will be refunded. By pre-registering now, you will have the best chance of securing your chosen domain name. It is expected that a huge number of .ie Personal Domains will be registered on October 31st. The rules of application are defined by the Irish Domain Registry and their decision in relation to an application is final.
